9.1 Planning your living expenses

There is no limit on the amount of money that you may stay with. The following aspects are designed to help you in planning your budget and to indicate when various payments have to be made during the year. More detailed estimates have been made available on the Fee Structure above.

(a) Personal Expenses

These will vary from person to person. You will need to budget for toiletries, stationeries, stamps, recharge call cards etc.

(b) Travel

If you intend to travel either within Lushoto or outside Lushoto, during the vacations you will need to incur the cost from your own pocket.

(c) Books/Photocopying/Stationery

You will need to buy some books associated with your courses. The complete book list (reading list) for any course will usually consist of a large number of books, cases, articles etc. and you will not be expected to buy them all. Check with your course tutor if you are not sure which books should be purchased. You will also need to budget for photocopying.

(d) Field Report Writing Costs

When calculating your total costs, you should bear in mind that costs of typing, printing and binding field reports are considerably high and you should contact your sponsor to help footing some of these costs. However, the amount will vary depending on the length and whether you type it yourself or not. You can expect to pay more if you need someone to help you the field report for you.

9.2 The Office of Dean of Students

The office of Dean of students is committed to supporting student wellness and success through a wide range of services, programs and initiatives. These services include personal, career, and academic counselling. It also supports students in organizing events, student clubs, and community outreach projects.

9.3 Students Organization

There exists a student organisation at the Institute that aims at promoting and safeguarding students' interests at the Institute, and for providing a channel of communication between students and the Institute's Management. The organisation, styled as the Institute of Judicial Administration Students' Organisation (IJASO), also deals with students' social, cultural and other recreational activities. Its membership is automatic upon a student's enrolment at the Institute but subject to payment of an annual subscription fee.

9.4 Religious Functions

Mosques and churches are located within the vicinity of the Institute's campus. This allows students wishing to attend religious services to do so as and when they want.

9.5 Accommodation

There is limited shared accommodation at the Institute, which is provided on first-come first-serve basis but the Institutes coordinate off-campus accommodation.

The Institute's female hostel

9.56 Catering Services

The Institute has a cafeteria within the campus, which is run by a private operator. The cafeteria provides a variety of foods, soft drinks and light refreshments. Besides, there are scores of food stores just outside the campus. These offer a variety of meals at affordable price.

9.7 Medical Services

The Institute has a dispensary providing medical services to IJA community. More serious medical cases are referred to Lushoto District Hospital which is nearby. Students are required to pay fifty thousand four hundred shillings (Tsh. 50,400/-) only for National Health Insurance annual registration if the student is not a member of the NHIF (National Health Insurance Fund) or any other Health Medical Insurance.

10 STUDYING AT IJA

Certificate and Diploma courses are principally taught by using lecturers, tutorials and seminar methods.

A lecture in which the lecturer addresses the class is fairly formal with a limited amount of class discussion. If you have difficulty in understanding a lecture or wish to raise any questions, you should make arrangements to see the lecturer concerned or raise the points in the seminar.

Members of staff are happy to help students who, because of a different educational background, have difficulty in dealing with a particular subject. It is important to make concise notes from your lectures, which will provide a basis for additional study on your own.

In seminars, members of the class are invited to join in discussion of a topic on which they will probably have been asked to prepare some work. All students are argued to contribute to the discussion and you should not be afraid of stating your own views.

After registration you will be provided with class time table.

10.1 Personal Academic Advisors

Each student is allocated one of the members of Academic Staff, who will be responsible for directing, advising or counselling on all matters relating to the academic progress of the student. As a matter of principle, every student is expected to meet his/her personal academic advisor at least once per Semester.

10.2 Continuous Assessment and Examinations

The Department of Judicial and Legal Studies will give you full information on how you will be assessed while courses are in progress (i.e. Course work: written assignment, mid-semester tests, and seminars). It is particularly important that you register and attend all formal assignments and tests. Finally, it is strongly recommended that you read all the information contained in the Regulations that are attached to this Prospectus.
